

Enhanced Legal Representation

In 2017, the Pennsylvania State Roundtable selected Enhanced Legal Representation as a core component of the Family Engagement Initiative (FEI). The FEI is designed to assist select counties in furthering collaborative efforts to enhance family engagement practices within the child welfare system.

Research has clearly identified the link between high quality legal representation and positive child welfare outcomes. In order for a judge to make the best possible decision about families, it is critically important that he or she receive the most accurate and complete information possible from and about all parties.* Therefore, competent, well-trained attorneys directly impact outcomes for families served.

The PA State Roundtable recognizes quality legal representation as a key component to ensure safety, timely permanence and well-being of children. Between 2009-2016 the State Roundtable's Legal Representation Workgroup made great strides to enhance legal representation. The Workgroup's accomplishments include: trainings for attorneys; a parent video; a children's court activity book which explains court proceedings; and Standards of Practice for attorneys.

The FEI legal representation component is grounded in PA State Roundtable's approved Standards of Practice. While all Standards are important, the FEI focuses on the four core identified standards, as each is research supported. FEI counties must choose at least two of the four identified standards to address during the first year of FEI implementation. County's will design their own goals, objectives and strategies based on these standards.
